MAN OBJECTS TO QUARANTINE LAWS

An amusing feature of the present quarantine regulations crops up now and then and places itself in contrast with the real seriousness of the matter, relieving the high-strung tension holding all of the officials.

Such a scene was enacted this morning in Dr. Ramus' office in the U. S. Marine Hospital building. Before leaving this port, all steamer passengers on outgoing boats must place themselves in quarantine for five days. Some of them don't like this; in fact, very few of them do like it.

An old man, presenting a very dignified appearance, came to Dr. Ramus' office this morning to be examined. He was going to ship steamer cargo on one of the large boats going out, and said he wished to be examined as quickly as possible on account of the many things he had to attend to before leaving.

Dr. Ramus gently broke the news to him that he must spend five days in strict quarantine before he would be allowed to go. "Makinai," what an explosion!

"I'm not dirty! I'm a clean man! I can take care of myself," he spluttered, stamping in and out of the room and glaring at the amiable doctor as if he had been grossly insulted.

But the doctor was firm, insisting that if the old gentleman wanted to leave Honolulu he must submit to the quarantine. Finally, when he saw there was no alternative, the man—who was clean decided to go; not, however, without expressing his decided opinion of quarantine "chairs" in general and one in particular.

Bills—"I understand that young Brown created quite an impression at the reception?" Willis—"Yes, he was the only one present who didn't talk."

THE WAYWARD YOUTH

Bob Burdette Has Something To Say About Him

"The question of punishment—how best effected? Well, . . . I should say, looking at the question from my own point of view, that very often it is best effected by omitting it. Bear in mind, this is the view of a man who has known in his life very intimately in close complete confidence, but two boys—himself and his own boy. And he doesn't believe in the rod at all. Beating isn't very good for horses; the best and most successful trainers use the whip very little or not at all, and it isn't a bit good for children. Boys must be punished sometimes, say many times, just as men and women have to be punished many times. But God doesn't beat us. Every time we lie He doesn't strike us with lightning; every time we break a commandment the earth does not yawn and swallow us up. His gentlest punishments are the heaviest. . . . Fire and brimstone can't make a hell so hot and terrible as self-reproach, remorse, heart-deep penitence.

We beat the boy, not often for his good, but because we are angry and want to beat somebody until the burst of anger is over."

(Yes, or to enforce our own mistaken order and save our dignity, or to carry out a discipline that is anything but righteous.)

"Then we are a busy people and whipping takes up less of our valuable time than any other mode of punishment. To reason with the boy, to talk it over with him calmly and lovingly would take an hour, maybe two hours. But you can whip him in three minutes. A man fighting, say at one hundred and fifty pounds, ought to be able to knock a 9-year-old boy out in the first round. You go on to your own work nervous, half-ashamed, irritable; your conscience, if it be not seared to callousness, lashing you with a whip of scorpions. And the boy goes his way, wrath and hate and contempt writhing in his heart, born of the pain and ache of his smarting back. It is the punishment of the Savage; it has been abolished from the army and the navy and is retained only in Christian homes!"

"And if whipping does very little good—scolding, which is the next most popular mode of punishment, does absolutely no good whatever under any circumstances. Not one particle. All the scolding in the world from the dawn of creation down never did one solitary bit of good. It makes people—boys, girls, women and men—nervous with anger; it irritates, annoys, frets and maddens them; drives boys away from home, and men to distraction; and that is about all it does. People say: 'Well, see how your favorite grand old prophet scolded.' Yes, they did, and some of them got saved in two for it. And the people whom they scolded went on worse than ever. Besides they scolded men who ought to know better; we are talking about the punishment of boys. Don't scold a boy, if you only knew what he was thinking about while you were scolding him you'd never do it again. . . . Revenge isn't punishment. It is better by your example, by your hopeful companionship, by your honest counsel, to keep the boy out of trouble than it is to whip him for getting into it. The more loving and forgiving your punishments the deeper will be their impression on the heart of the boy. Be gentle and patient with him. His worst faults irritate you, the most keenly because you know whence he inherits them.

"It was Filsha—who in just anger said upon Gehazi the leprosy of Naaman that should 'cleave unto him and unto his children forever,' a punishment for covetousness and lying. But when the man of Nazareth came into the world he laid his hand upon the leper and cleansed him.—When you have made up your mind in about ten minutes or ten seconds that your boy needs a good sound whipping, take about three days to think it over—a whipping will keep for a week—and then see if you can take a stick and beat him."

The "other boy" Mr. Burdette knew intimately is now a man, a manly, courteous, affectionate son with a fine Christian character. The B. B. knew the lad when he was small, walked with him among the fields, sat by him when his father was lecturing, and has had dealings with him since. He worships his father and has been guided by his kindly influence.

But do not think that this boy wasn't human, didn't have his own share of mischief and waywardness—not at all.

He was like other boys, but was reasoned and loved out of what might have hurt his character and grown-up life.

The B. B. is not through with "The Wayward Youth." Many prominent men and women over the land are going to say what they think of beating human flesh, sending mischievous boys and girls to Reform Schools and, in other ways, exhibiting a total lack of human love and Christian sympathy.

These men and women will stand well among their kind for hearts as well as brains; they will range from gentle mothers to Presidents of countries like the United States!

They will be preachers, doctors, lawyers, judges and common everyday citizens.

And when we get done saying some things and doing some things, there will be changes in Hawaii so far as our children are concerned. Our Bench has men on it who are impartial and just. They have also human hearts, and any law or regulation which is not good for our children or other people's children no matter who they are, will have to go.

Our Board of Health in its own line is going to look out for the children. And our Board of Education, as it now stands, is alive to the needs of children, and no one of the honorable members who constitute its efficiency is going to let a false reverence for old standards, or any old fogeyism whatever, stand in the way of their giving to the children of this country the education and the consideration they deserve.

And the Governor with babies of his own is up with the rest. Will 'his be only talk? No sir-ree. Non-lepreous children are going to have a chance.

A hospital for children is sprouting, and other institutions for the blind and deaf and dumb! It's in the air—the soft Hawaiian air. And it won't be long before these mischievous boys who play truant and lie will have some loving influence provided so that they won't want to lie and run away again.

And our girls who have no homes, or those who have bad ones, will not be ruined by judicial wrongs. I tell you that it won't be long before any teacher who beats a boy or girl will be discharged, and awakened to the inutility of corporal punishment will be public be.

Questionable character—the interrogation point.

All the world loves a lover, except the other fellow.
